

FIVE HANGINGS

Sensational Scenes Attended Two Executions.

One Man Carried to Gallows Three Times—Murderer Hernia Became Violent When Officers Refused to Let Him See His Wife.

Camden, N. J., Sept. 19.—The last act in a juvenile tragedy of love, drink and murder, was enacted in the jail yard today, when at 10:04 o'clock this morning Lafayette Gruff died on the gallows. He killed his wife by cutting her throat from ear to ear on March 11 last. He was 19 years old and still but 18 when they were married, but a year before. Driven desperate by the drunken habits of her husband, after an unhappy year, Mrs. Gruff left him. Two weeks later the husband met her and demanded that she return and live with him. When she refused he killed her.

HARDY TO HANG.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 19.—According to the latest advices received here, Fred Hardy, the Unimak Island murderer, will be hanged today at Nome, President Roosevelt having declined to interfere. Hardy shot down in cold blood and robbed Con and Florence Sullivan and P. J. Ronney, who were his companions on a prospecting expedition to Unimak Island.

HANGED THREE TIMES.

Vienna, Sept. 19.—A sensational scene occurred at the hanging of Zeco Kamenow at Widden Citadel today for murder.

Kamenow had concealed a knife on his person and when the guard came to take him to the scaffold he stabbed a soldier and three of the wardens' guards. He was seized and forced to the scaffold.

On the first drop the rope broke and Kamenow fell to the floor half dead. He was picked up and again the rope was fixed. This time the hanging seemed successful but when the body was taken down it was discovered that life was not yet extinct. A third hanging was necessary before the murderer was killed.

MURDERER WAS VIOLENT.

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 19.—Peter Hernia, who killed Butcher Kanter on March 4 last, paid the penalty for his crime this morning when he was hanged in the county jail. The execution took place at 10:25 this morning and in 8 minutes Hernia was declared dead. Hernia created a violent scene in the jail at 9:30 this morning. His wife had called to see him but the jail officials would not allow the couple to meet. Hernia got a glimpse of his wife and when he learned that he could not meet her he became violent. He broke away from his guards ran down the corridor and jumped a five-foot space to a bathroom. Here he tore out the plumbing and brandishing this as a weapon said he would kill any one who came near him. For a time the guards were held at bay then they attacked the fire hose to a pump turned a stream on the murderer which knocked him down and permitted of his capture. Hernia fought desperately and had to be bound with straps.

When the time for his execution arrived he had quieted down and went peacefully to the gallows. There was no further scene.

Hernia killed Butcher Baranov Kanter in his shop in Wallington. He had asked the butcher for some meat for his dog and when the latter refused Hernia shot him dead.

DEVINE HANGED TODAY.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 19.—John W. Devine, who murdered Charles O'Donohue, a policeman, while resisting arrest here on May 19 last, was hanged in the jail yard at 9:52 o'clock this morning. The murder was a desperate affair. The officer had arrested Devine and was about to lead him to prison when the fellow secured possession of a bottle and struck O'Donohue over the head, rendering him unconscious. While he lay senseless in the street Devine took the officer's pistol from his pocket and killed him. He escaped but two days later was captured. Devine had a sweetheart who sympathized with him and he married her in jail while the death cloud was over his head.

BROKE

Window Under Nose of Officer, Getting Away
With Jewelry.

Cleveland, Sept. 19.—Early this morning during thieves kicked in the plate glass in the front of Heilman's jewelry store on Euclid avenue. They did it under the very nose of a policeman, who gave chase, but the thieves escaped with $600 worth of jewelry.

DYNAMITE

Was Used to Blow Up Large Dam and the Home of Fire Boss Richard Parfitt.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 19.—At three o'clock this morning the large dam on Solomon's creek, from which water is taken to operate the Moffitt washery at Ashley, was blown up by dynamite, the result being that the dam was drained necessarily compelling the washery to stop operations. Examination revealed that 25 pieces of explosive had been used.

Mahoning City, Pa., Sept. 19.—Shortly before midnight last night strikers dynamited the home of Richard Parfitt, the fire boss, now employed at Gilchrist water shaft. A charge was placed underneath the porch and when it exploded it tore away a goodly portion of the house and shattered the windows of adjacent residences within a radius of 200 yards. The family escaped injury.

MOUSE

Caused Panic Among 500
Women Last Night at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Sept. 19.—A mouse caused a panic in the Academy of Music last night and 500 women climbed on their seats during the performance to avoid the little animal. The mouse was chased into the theatre by the academy cat. The chase continued up and down the aisles, and was interrupted by women screaming and climbing on their seats. The mouse was finally captured and the cat made its cat.

In an Airship.

London, Sept. 19.—Aeronaut Spencer started from the Crystal Palace in an airship of his own construction this afternoon and sailed in the direction of St. Paul's cathedral where he passed about 5:30 this evening. After rounding St. Paul's, Spencer turned his course westward and proceeded over London in the direction of Earlscourt.

The glowworm lays eggs which are themselves luminous. However, the young hatched from them are not possessed of those peculiar properties until after the first transformation. A 15-year-old boy in the canton of Grisons, Switzerland, came across three large caterpillars the other day, and engaged in a deadly fight. He killed one of them with his stick, whereupon the others took flight.

BY HIS HANDS

Chicago Man Held on for 20 Minutes,
100 Feet Above Ground.—Rescued
Just in Time.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Suspended only by his hands, McNaughton Wright, a prominent member of the board of trade, hung between life and death for 20 minutes at the top of a grain chute in the Rock Island elevator.

When rescued Mr. Wright was exhausted and on the point of releasing his hold, which would have meant a fall of a hundred feet to the hard floor of an empty bin, and almost certain death.

He had entered the elevator to inspect some wheat. Making a mis-step, he fell into the chute, but succeeded in clutching the edge and hanging by his hands. Mr. Wright's calls for help were finally heard by an employee, who pulled him out. He fainted, and was unconscious for nearly an hour, so great had been the strain.

GRAND DUKE GOES.

New York, Sept. 19.—Grand Duke Boris of Russia, sailed for France yesterday on the French liner La Lorraine.

TRAGEDY

Was Seen By Two of
The Children.

Jealous Man Shot Woman, Sampson And Himself.

JUST BEFORE THE WEDDING AT BATTLE CREEK.

WOMAN'S WOUND ARE FATAL.

She Answered a Matrimonial "Ad."
and this Aroused Arthur Whitcomb's Jealousy.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 19.—Two hours before Mrs. Elizabeth Notter was to have become the bride of Wm. H. Sampson, Arthur E. Whitcomb, of Chicago, appeared on the scene, mortally wounded Sampson, shot Mrs. Notter three times and then turned one of the weapons upon himself.

Both men died about midnight, within an hour of each other.

Jealousy was the cause. Mrs. Notter had been Whitcomb's housekeeper for more than two years. A month ago Mrs. Notter read an advertisement in a newspaper to this effect: "Wanted—A housekeeper; will marry her is satisfactory. Wm. H. Sampson, Battle Creek, Mich."

She wrote a letter in answer to the advertisement, and upon receipt of the reply left the city.

When Whitcomb heard of her intentions he threatened to kill her, but she did not take his threats seriously. Whitcomb arrived here from Chicago Thursday afternoon and proceeded to the Sampson residence, where a number of the neighbors were preparing Mrs. Notter for the marriage ceremony.

Rushing into the house he shot Sampson in the back. He then broke into Mrs. Notter's room and shot her in the neck and each arm. Running in to the yard he turned the revolver upon himself and sent a bullet into his head. Mrs. Notter's wounds are fatal.

The tragedy was witnessed by Mrs. Notter's 9 year old son and Sampson's 15 year old daughter.

Cattle Trust.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—A cattle trust with a proposed capitalization of $50,000,000 is in process of formation, according to a number of local dealers who claim to have been approached by the promoters. The new combine if effected will purchase the cattle business of the northwestern and southwestern states, which means a virtual monopoly in this country. The amalgamation of the several interests which will make the new trust a certainty will, it is thought, be perfected by Jan. 1, 1903.

FIFTY

Hurt In a Wreck At Leesburg O.

Two Trainmen On B. & O. S. W.
Killed.

ENGINE OF ROYAL BLUE FLYER JUMPED TRACK.

NO PLAUSIBLE EXPLANATION

Is Given for the Wreck—Injured Taken to Chillicothe—Train Was Running Fast.

Chillicothe, O., Sept. 19.—No. 2, the Royal Blue Flyer on the B. & O. S. W. was wrecked at Leesburg at 3 o'clock last night, the train having run into an open switch while going at the rate of 50 miles an hour. To add to the disaster the engine exploded and the engineer, Philip Roe, and Fireman Charles Studer, both of this city were killed outright.

The train consisted of eight coaches, and was packed with people who were returning home from the Fall festival. There were about 15 passengers on the train from this city, but all have advised their relatives that they are not seriously injured. Mrs. Sellers, of Wellston, Ohio, is in a critical condition and cannot be moved, provision being made for her at Leesburg. Mrs. George Warner, of this city, is badly hurt and her two children bruised.

Engineer Philip Roe's body was found under the postal car while that of Fireman Studer was wedged between the tank and the engine. The postal and baggage cars were heaped on top of the engine tank. The wrecking crew was at McArthur clearing up a small derailment there and some time was lost in getting to Leesburg.

The dead engineer, Philip Roe, was one of the oldest engineers in the employ of the B. & O. S. W. Charles Studer, the fireman, was a young and careful man. Both leave families.

The following is a partial list of injured:

Mrs. John Sellers, Wellston; badly injured; will probably die.

Miss Sylvester, Wellston, injured about head; not serious.

Charles Mosher, Chillicothe; hurt about back.

Mrs. George Warner, hurt about arms and head.

Mabel Warner, bruised about face.

The following named officials of the B. & O. S. W. railway company were on the train at the time the train ran into the open switch: W. M. Green, I. G. Rawn, G. W. Plumley, trainmaster of the Ohio division; L. C. French, superintendent of the Mississippi division, and Trainmaster Haggerty.

All of the injured in the wreck were brought to this city. The number was almost fifty, but none of them are fatally hurt, and the death list will probably remain at two.

Mrs. Sellers was the most seriously injured.

No plausible explanation is given of the wreck. It was at first thought that a freight crew had left the switch open, but here was no train on the siding at the time. The siding is a very small one and the engine, while going at a high speed, jumped the track. People from here, who were on the train report that it was one of the worst wrecks that ever occurred on the road.

Engineer Roe's body as found under the postal car, while that of Fireman Studer was wedged between the tank and the engine. The postal and baggage cars were heaped on top of the engine tank and all the passenger coaches left in back and are a mass of splinters. A fine first two coaches turned over, the lights went out and the passengers were left in fear and trembling. They succeeded in getting through the wreck, which had been torn off and by most of windows.

Coaches were thrown in all directions and one struck the end of Henderson's mill and completely caved in the side of the building. The engine is also totally demolished.

It is reported that Maroon, of wire less telegraph, one is to be given a title by King Victor Emmanuel.

SALISBURY

Confined to His Bed and is Now Seriously Ill in Switzerland—Physician Sent For.

London, Sept. 19.—The Times this morning says:

"We much regret to learn that Lord Salisbury, who at present is in Switzerland, is ill and confined to his bed. An English and Swiss doctor have been attending him and it is understood that his lordship's own attendant in London has been sent for."

Lord Salisbury has been touring the health resorts of southern Europe for several weeks. Visitors to Switzerland frequently have seen him riding a bicycle. He always kept much to himself and attracted little attention.

For some time past his lordship's health has been gradually failing and the announcement of The Times, although carefully worded, causes alarm.

Marquis Salisbury is at Schweizhof, Lucerne. It has been ascertained that the former premier is suffering from a chill and a slight attack of gout. There is, however, no cause for anxiety.

NAMES OF DEAD AND INJURED.

A Head End Collision Today on Pittsburg & Western Near Wilmer Station Pa.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 19.—As a result of a head end collision on the Pittsburg & Western railway near Wilmer Station this morning, five people were killed and two seriously injured. The victims are:

George C. Huser, brakeman of a local freight, who had been riding on the engine of the B. R. & P. train.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon his body was still pinned under the engine.

Wm. Benedict, engineer of the B. R. & P. train, whose body is still pinned under his engine at 1 o'clock.

Thomas E. Dugan, fireman of the B. R. & P. train.

Fay Demoss, a boiler maker, who had been traveling on the P. & W. engine.

Wm. Graham, fireman of the P. & W. train.

The following are injured: H. F. Chamber, engineer of the P. & W. train, taken to Allegheny hospital; may die.

C. W. Crossman, express messenger on the B. R. & P. train, has been brought to the hospital, but will recover.

Wilmer is a flag station on the P. & W. near Sharpsburg. The accommodation train left Glenshaw at 9:15 this morning. The B. R. & P. train left Allegheny at 9 o'clock. At the place of the collision is a very sharp curve which prevented the engineers of either train from seeing each other until the collision had taken place. The result was that the two trains traveling at a good rate of speed, crashed together.

STATUE

Of Major General Slocum Was Dedicated With Imposing Ceremony
Today at Gettysburg.

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 19.—The equitation statue of Major General Henry W. Slocum was dedicated on Culp's Hill, battlefield of Gettysburg. It was erected by the State of New York and taking in the elaborate ceremonies were the Governors of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, United States senators, veterans of the Civil war and national guardsmen of the respective states, numbering thousands.

BUYING VOTES

For a Cincinnati Street Railway Franchise.

Legislators Taken to Cincinnati in Charge of Lobbyists, Ostensibly to See the Fall Festival, But Really to Secure Their Votes for the Fifty Year Franchise.

Columbus, Sept. 19.—The members of the general assembly—or a large majority of them—are in Cincinnati today, ostensibly for the purpose of viewing the beauties of the Fall carnival, but primarily in order to promote the designs of the Cincinnati Traction company on a perpetual franchise or at least on a revival of the 50-year franchise granted by the Rogers act, which was declared unconstitutional by the Superior court of Cincinnati. An army of Republican lobbyists swooped down on Columbus this week. Members are being coached and there is no lack of funds to accomplish this coaching. The lobbyists are divided into groups, some of whom are working those who need argument, while another set is "dealing direct" with the men who have the votes. The Cincinnati junkie is in charge of Benson Foraker, son of the senator, vice president of the Cincinnati Street railroad, and the chief lobbyist for the passage of the "curative" section. To emphasize the work of the lobby here it was proposed to take the legislature to Cincinnati and turn them over to the good grace of the local traction company hustlers.

There are two "curative" sections proposed for the Rogers law, one by Williams of Hamilton, which without attempting to legalize the Cincinnati franchises prohibits any court from considering its legality. The other is a proposed section presented to the senate by Hosea of Cincinnati, and declares the illegal 50-year franchise shall be legal despite the recent decision of the courts. Both these sections have been approved by the attorneys for the company.

Already the talk of buying votes is heard on all sides, and the Cincinnati trip is expected to develop some sensational features. The lawmakers may not know it, but the Cincinnati hosts are more anxious to quietly leave a favorable street railway impression than they are to have them view the greatness of Cincinnati as exhibited in the Fall festival.

CAUGHT

Watchman and Held Him
While They Dynamited Postoffice Safe.

Jefferson, Ohio, Sept. 19.—Three masked robbers dynamited the postoffice safe here early this morning and secured $250 cash and $80 worth of stamps. Just before they reached the postoffice they captured Watman Lawrence Jones, bound and gagged him and took him to the office where he witnessed the dynamiting. They then threw him in a shed, told him to be quiet and left on a freight. Jones finally got loose and alarmed the town.

HAD TO KISS

Colored Girls as Punishment—Parents or White Pupils at Bellaire Are Indignant.

Bellaire, O., Sept. 19.—This city is wild with indignation over the alleged actions of J. D. Deafenbaugh, principal of the Fifth Ward School. There had been some differences between eighteen of the girls of the school, nine of whom were colored and nine white, and it culminated on Wednesday afternoon in an open quarrel or fight, and which called for punishment in some suitable way. He gave his ultimatum. It is said, that the white girls must all kiss the colored girls or take a licking. Frightened, they all obeyed but one and she escaped to her home, but was notified that she could not return to school until she goes through the process. The parents of the children when told about it were indignant and the School Board will be asked to investigate at once. The board's decision will be waited with much interest.

Daylight Robbery.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 19.—A sensational daylight robbery occurred here today. A postal van was standing in front of a bank here when thieves made a raid on it and camped with $8,000 francs and valuables, the amount of which has not yet been estimated.

Mississippi's 22 legal hangings this year is called by one paper a "ghastly though creditable exhibit." During the same period there have been but four lynchings in the State.

POLICE

Close on Trail of Man Who Killed Mrs. Anna Pulitzer.

New York, Sept. 19.—The police are close on the trail of the murderer of Mrs. Anna Pulitzer, whose nude body was found in the Morris Canal yesterday with a weight strapped to her neck. It is now known that she went riding with a man Tuesday who had in his buggy a strap and weight like that found with the body. The police expect to find the man today. The buggy was not returned to the livery man who owned it.

YAWNED,

Stretched Forth His Limbs, and Awakened from His Long Sleep a Sane Man.

Napoleon, Ohio, Sept. 19.—A short time ago Emory Sheldon, a tramp, drove the family of George Amerson from their house at the point of a knife and fought the farmers who came to their aid for over an hour before he was overpowered and taken into custody. Sheldon was in a crazed condition, and was confined to the county jail pending commitment to the state hospital. He has been violent for the past week and strict watch has had to be kept over him.

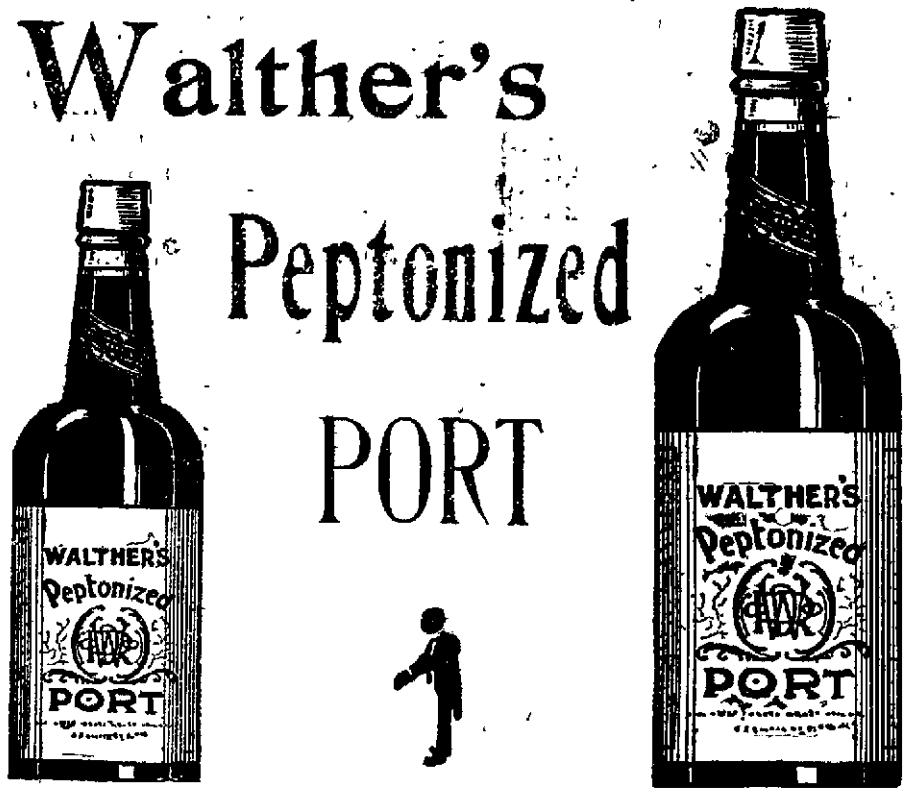

Tuesday afternoon, after one of his violent spells, he suddenly fell back exhausted. He appeared to be asleep, but all efforts to arouse him proved useless. He continued in this condition for the better part of 48 hours during that time taking no nourishment whatever, and it was thought that death would soon end his sleep. Yesterday however, he yawned, then stretched his limbs, and without the least warning sat up, a perfectly sane man. He has no remembrance of the past few weeks.

FOR MRS. MAYBRICK.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—A mass meeting will be held Oct. 9 at the Auditorium to raise money for another effort to release Mrs. Florence Maybrick from an English prison. Senator Mason, Clarence Darrow and Miss Jane Addams will speak. Harriet Hubbard Ayre of New York; Mrs. McKillip and Mrs. Wesley Merriott purpose to go to England this fall and to work to have Mrs. Maybrick freed.

LETTER

Brings Glad News to Chicago Colored Girl Who Is Now Worth a Million Dollars.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Lulu H. Davis, colored, of this city, has received a letter from an attorney in Cripple Creek, Colo., telling her she is worth $1,000,000. A lot which she bought 12 years ago in Plainfield, Colo., has become a gold mine, the writer says. Miss Davis bought the lot when living in Owensboro, Ky., and it cost but $100.

UTICA RELICS

Some Documents of Many Years Ago When Goods and Passengers Came by Team.

(Utica Herald.)

It is only when some old document turns up, to enable comparisons, that one can correctly appreciate the march of improvement. For an instance in the line of transportation of goods and passengers. Dr. Garrison a few days ago, in going through some old papers that were found in a Utica envelope in a Newark bank, came across some relics of interest. One of them is a receipt which reads as follows:

Cleveland, Aug. 23, 1848.
Received of Mr. Knowlton, Stage fare for 1 seat Cleveland to Mt. Vernon, $4.00. Baggage at your own risk.
L. STARTWELL.

A more ancient document is a receipt for freight. It does not designate by what route the goods were sent. It reads:

New York, April 26, 1828.

A. Palmer & Co. to Union Transportation Line, for freight of 4 cases from Philadelphia, 2650-10-25. Received payment.

H. F. & A., per Decker

There was also a receipt for money paid in 1852 by L. W. Knowlton for subscription to the Cincinnati Detective, a periodical calculated to enable persons to recognize counterfeit money.

KAISER'S ARMY WEAK.

General Corbin Says In War It Would Be Annihilated.

SHINING TARGET FOR LONG RANGE

American Officer After Reviewing the Maneuvers Points Out That Infantry System of Close Formation Is Not Fitted to Modern Warfare.

Unsuspectingly and innocently Emperor William appealed to the United States and British military experts, Adjutant General Corbin, General Young, General Wood, General Sir John Hamilton and General French, to pass judgment upon his army after the maneuvers on the Tempelhof field and at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, writes the Berlin correspondent of the New York Herald. Not a little dismayed was the emperor when both American and British experts, fresh from the campaigns in the Philippines and South Africa, were unanimous in declaring that the infantry system of the German army, of which his imperial majesty is most proud and confident, is impracticable in action and a weak link of the army.

The emperor one evening gathered the British and American officers about him and asked their opinions and at a gala dinner again took Adjutant General Corbin, General Young and General French to discuss matters pertinent to his army system. The emperor showed eagerness to learn the impressions of these generals, whose experiences have been enriched by active engagements in the Philippines and the Transvaal.

The emperor like criticism and invites it, but he was hardly prepared for the candor and honesty with which his guests attacked the infantry system as a primitive organization which would tumble together like a house of cards under a galling fire of long distance artillery and other modern weapons of warfare.

Adjutant General Henry C. Corbin accorded the Herald correspondent an interview, in which he remarked: "In drill and compact organization there is nothing like the German infantry the world over. It would have been invincible in former days, with the caliber and range of guns which permitted hostile armies to approach to within a few hundred yards. But in modern warfare, with artillery that reaches several miles and rifles with a range of 4,000 yards, the German infantry would be annihilated."

"It would be a shining target if some soldiers should lie behind embankments a great distance away. The German infantryman, so far as I am able to judge from the maneuvers, is made of stern fighting timber, but with the system of solid ranks and automatic discipline his fighting force is reduced to a minimum. Against long range artillery and rifles, in my opinion he would be useless in action."

"Both British and American generals agree in this opinion. General Young, who comes from the Philippines, and General French, who was in South Africa, agree that the compact character and system of infantry of the German army would be of no avail in modern warfare."

"Whoever imagines the emperor has attained pre-eminence by accident of birth makes a big mistake. The emperor possesses great force of character and is opinionated, but that is a characteristic of all great men. He believes in the army and his infantry system. He clings to the old infantry formation and discipline, condemned by modern warfare. The emperor also is very democratic and surprises me. He does not permit promotions from the ranks, which explains the lack of petty officers in the German army."

"In the United States army promotion from the ranks has proved itself a commendable principle. It has its disadvantages; but, as a rule, it yields excellent results. German officers are excellent military men and well trained, but it surprises me that promotion from the ranks is not in practice in the German army."

The view of General Corbin relative to the German infantry is in accord with that uttered by members of the British army in the delegation invited to attend the maneuvers.

Admiral's Son an Actor.

Frederick Sumner, son of Rear Admiral Sumner, whose flagship, the Iowa, went ashore on the coast of Brazil the other day, is playing a modest part in a New York theater, says the World. The young man's identity was discovered by an accident. He then said that he had decided to try his hand at acting and had done so with the knowledge of only a few of his friends. Young Sumner is a descendant of Charles Sumner, the famous orator. His father intended to give him a naval education, but the young man objected, and when the admiral found that his son was bent on joining a circus he compromised by allowing him to enter the dramatic field.

Browning's First Known Ancestor.
In the parish church at Penridge, in Dorset, England, where the family of Robert Browning resided, a tablet has just been erected in memory of the poet's ancestor, also called Robert. The memorial bears the following inscription:

To the memory of ROBERT BROWNING of Woodgrates, in this parish, who died Nov. 2, 1745, and is the first known forefather of Robert Browning the poet.

He was formerly footman and butler in the Bankes family.

"All service ranks the same with God," Browning.

This tablet was erected by some of the poet's friends and admirers, 1902.

HENDERSON

Talk That He May Be Forced to Retire From Speakership at the Coming Session.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Will General

Henderson be forced to resign the speakership? He has no thought of vacating his berth but it is more than possible that matters will be made so unpleasant for him that he would welcome retirement to the ranks before the end of the coming short session of congress. It is not believed here that he realizes the degree of hostility he has engendered against himself among his political associates by laying down his hand in the congressional game. This feeling takes of a personal as well as of a political character. While it is not likely that his Republican colleagues would carry their resentment to the extent of fighting him on the floor of the House they are in a position to make his occupancy of the speaker's chair exceedingly uncomfortable. From now on he will be the leader of the House merely in name. It is only with the co-operation of the Republican members of the committee on rules that the speaker has been able to control legislation in the lower House. With these men—Grosvenor and Halzell—against him he would be as Sanson, shorn of his locks. Without their support his position would quickly become untenable.

PRESIDENT

Passes Through Newark Early Tomorrow Morning, but the Special Will Not Stop.

President Theodore Roosevelt will pass through Newark tomorrow at 2:45 a. m., on the third section of No. 5, en route to Cincinnati. The train will not stop in Newark but will go direct to Cincinnati.

BY RAIN

People of Paulding Were Kept Away From the Meeting—1500 However Were Present.

Paulding, Ohio, September 19.—Mayor Johnson, Mr. Bigelow and their retinue of political campaigners ran into nasty weather here last night. The rain came down in such a way as to be discouraging, and kept several hundred people away from the meeting in the big tent. Mrs. Johnson joined her husband at Defiance and will remain with him for several days.

The tent was pitched in a lot a short distance from the railway station. It has been definitely decided to invade Cincinnati with the entire outfit on October 23 for three days.

The Republican State Committee is keeping close watch on the Johnson-Bigelow tour. Harry Boyer, for the committee, is with the party all the time and takes shorthand notes of such portions of the speeches of Johnson and Bigelow as he thinks might prove good campaign material for the Republican spell-binders.

There was discomfort for the crowd in the Johnson tent because of rainy weather. A crowd estimated at 1500 Mr. Johnson seemed at his best but they presented their arguments forcibly as usual. Hon. John S. Snook, Congressman from this district, who resides in Paulding, presided, and said only a few words before he presented Rev. H. S. Bigelow.

The Cincinnati minister began his remarks by calling attention to the declaration of General Shattuck again to be a candidate for Congress in the First Cincinnati district, and considered it most remarkable that the Congressman should send his letter of declination to Mr. George B. Cox instead of the Chairman of the County Committee.

JAMES H. SMITH'S APPOINTMENT FROM PAN HANDLE.

Wreck at Defiance—Watching Jones Want More Pay—Local Notes and Personals.

Mr. James H. Smith, whose home is on Eddy street, this city, but who for years had been city ticket agent at Columbus for the Pan Handle railroad company has just received a good appointment from the company which he has served so faithfully and well for many years. The following is from Columbus.

"James H. Smith, who tendered his resignation as city ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines in this city, has been appointed traveling freight and passenger solicitor of the Pan Handle, with headquarters at Newark, Ohio. The appointment dates back to September 1. Mr. Smith served as city ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines at this point for many years and has a large circle of friends who will be glad to hear that he will remain in the railroad business."

Costly Wreck at Defiance.

Defiance, O., Sept. 19.—The Wabash and B. & O. railroads had a costly collision at the crossing in this city on Thursday. While switching the Wabash engine had the target in her favor, but on the approach of a B. & O. train the latter was given the right of way. This was not noticed by Engineer Monan of the Wabash and with a cut of cars he struck the other locomotive with a terrific crash. The B. & O. locomotive was so badly damaged that she could not be moved. The Wabash lost her pilot and the head was cast in.

THEY WANT MORE PAY.

The National Association of the Railway Postal Clerks and the United States Railway Mail Service Mutual Benefit association are in annual convention at Buffalo. While the two bodies are distinct organizations they have many aims in common and for the last two years have found it to their interests to meet together. The principal topic before the convention was the agitation for better pay for the employees throughout the country.

FREE TO MILLIONS.

A Valuable Little Book Sent Free for the Asking.

Medical books are not always interesting reading, especially to people enjoying good health, but as a matter of fact scarcely one person in ten is perfectly healthy, and even with such, sooner or later sickness must come.

It is also a well established truth that nine-tenths of all diseases originate with a breaking down of the digestion, a weak stomach weakens and impoverishes the system, making it easy for disease to gain a foothold.

Nobody need fear consumption, kidney disease, liver trouble or a weak heart and nervous system as long as the digestion is good and the stomach able to assimilate plenty of wholesome food.

Stomach weakness shows itself in a score of ways and this little book describes the symptoms and causes and points the way to a cure so simple that anyone can understand and apply. Thousands have some form of stomach trouble and do not know it. They ascribe the headaches, the languor, nervousness, insomnia, palpitation, constipation and similar symptoms to some other cause than the true one. Get your digestion on the right track and the heart trouble, lung trouble, liver disease or nervous debility will rapidly disappear.

This little book treats entirely on the cause and removal of indigestion and its accompanying annoyances.

It describes the symptoms of Acid Dyspepsia, Nervous Dyspepsia, Slow Dyspepsia, Amylous Dyspepsia, Catarrh of stomach and all affections of the digestive organs in plain language easily understood and the cause removed.

It gives valuable suggestions as to diet and contains a table giving length of time required to digest various articles of food, something every person with weak digestion should know.

No price is asked, but simply send your name and address plainly written on postal card to the F. A. Smart Co., Marshall, Mich., requesting a little book on Stomach Diseases and it will be sent promptly by return mail.

YOUR SENSE OF DUTY
CULTIVATE IT TO THE EXTREME LIMIT OF YOUR ABILITY.

It is the noblest, most manly and at the same time most womanly of Qualities—The Real Basis of Education and Success.

Teachers and parents are asked to consider the statement that a sense of duty is the foundation of real education and the basis of success. What ever has been achieved of real importance in the world has been based upon a sense of duty. Religion itself is founded upon duty, and its main teachings deal with questions of duty—the duty of men and women toward each other and toward their Creator.

Children's minds will be strengthened, their work made easier and their ambition stimulated if they can be made to feel toward duty that it is not repulsive, but that it offers an opportunity for achievement, an opportunity for every individual to prove his worth and that he deserves to succeed. If duty can be strongly developed in the mind of a young child, the effect will remain through life and make that child's existence useful.

Parents should impress upon their children—and young people should impress upon themselves—the fact that a sense of duty is the noblest, most manly and at the same time most womanly of qualities.

The average small boy thinks that there is something "soft" about a dutiful boy. He should be taught that what made Washington a fighter and Lincoln great among his fellows was nothing else than a sense of duty to their country.

What makes a fireman brave is a sense of duty. A sense of duty is at the foundation of every effort made to provide for children, to meet the obligations of life honestly.

The German philosopher Fichte, as admirable a moral character as the world has known, exemplifies as perfectly as any the beauty of a life inspired by a sense of duty, and it is a life which may be well studied by those engaged in shaping the character of the young.

The very keynote of his philosophical system was based on duty. "Unsere Welt ist das vernünftige Material unserer Pflicht," said he.

This idea—that our world is but the material incarnation of our duty—he taught, and what is more, he practiced what he preached.

One preacher who practices his preachings thoroughly is worth many of the other kind, no matter how eloquent the others. And Fichte practiced his beliefs. When he was poor and a young tutor, he set a good example to every teacher. As a tutor he made his living, but he knew that his duty to the child entrusted to him was the principal thing. He knew also that every child is really formed in character and morals by the influence of its parents.

Fichte kept a journal devoted to the attitude of his employers toward their child—his pupil. Every week he told them the mistakes they had made and held them accountable for spoiling the child through flattery, too much kindness, ill judged severity or in whatever way. Strange to say, the parents actually put up with this for two whole years, so great was their admiration for the young tutor's moral character.

Duty well ingrained in the soul will keep a man on the right path in easy times and in hard times. Fichte is quoted here because no man better than he proves the power of a sense of duty. In small things duty guided him, and it guided him at the end.

He was just past the half century of his age and had been gloriously successful. He had been called to the chair of philosophy at Berlin, and no teacher of truth had ever been more loved or more admired. On a certain day he was to lecture, and he had chosen "Duty" for his subject. His country was at war and threatened with invasion and absolute annihilation of her liberties.

Fichte, who had talked much of the little duties of life, talked on this day of man's duty to his country. The sound of drums calling for conscripts frequently interrupted his lecture. He told the listening young man that each man's duty is to lend his individual strength and life to his country in time of danger. It was a marvelous address, and it ended well.

For at the close he said to his great crowd of admiring students: "This course of lectures will be suspended until the end of the campaign. We shall resume them in a free country or die in the attempt to recover her freedom."

Fichte left his lecture platform to enlist as a simple soldier, and, needless to say, his students followed his example in crowds. That was at the beginning of the campaign of 1813, but the example is good enough to last until now and for many hundred years to come. A year later, aged fifty-two, he died. He caught the fever while caring for those afflicted, among others for his own wife, who had gone with the army as nurse.

Make duty a strong part of your child's or your pupil's moral education. A sense of duty impels men to struggle on and do their best even in the face of failure; a sense of duty impels the successful man to make good use of his success. The hideous, empty, selfish lives of the self-indulgent class are based upon utter lack of the sense of duty. In the education of a child moral teachings should come first; in a child's mental equipment moral qualities should be first considered. By example, precept, argument and through history impress upon your children the fact that without a sense of duty they are unworthy of the opportunities that life offers to men in this world.—New York Journal.

CHICAGO'S BIG SCORE.
Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, tried out twenty-eight men in the game Wednesday against Englewood High school, the first of the season which the Varsity won 5 to 0. Every man who has a chance to make the team played a part of the game, and the showing was very encouraging to the followers of the Maroon eleven.

HALL GOES TO MICHIGAN.
It now looks as if Hall and Dickey who were counted on by Stagg for his Chicago eleven are lost to the Maroons. Both are fast High School players, who were expected to more than make good, but Thursday they went to Michigan's training quarters where the Ann Arbor eleven are doing preliminary work. They did not say they were not going to Chicago, but it is said that Manager Baird of Michigan is using every influence to get the two promising men. This Baird emphatically denies. Hall holds the western record for the two mile run.

McGOVERN AND CORBETT ENJOINED.
Louisville, Sept. 19.—Judge Field of the Jefferson Circuit Court, Thursday night, granted the injunction prayed for by State's Attorney General Pratt, to prevent the contest between Terry McGovern and Young Corbett, scheduled for next Monday night.

The attorney for the Southern Athletic club will apply to the lower court of appeals today for a dissolution of the injunction and a decision in this matter is expected by noon.

A dissolution of the injunction by the appellate court means a victory for the promoters of the contest.

Concerning Judge Field's decision, Manager Robert C. Gray of the Southern Athletic club said to the Associated Press:

"At 11 o'clock on Friday morning my attorneys will appeal to a judge of the court of appeals for a dissolution of the injunction. The defense claims Judge Field has no jurisdiction. My lawyers say there can be no injunction against an alleged criminal offense. I am absolutely confident the contest will take place."

O. S. U.'S GOOD PRACTICE.
Ruggles Beach, O., Sept. 13.—Thursday was another ideal day for football and the men put in a fine day's work. The squad was out at 9:30 and went through an hour's work at starting and sprinting, in place of the customary 12-mile walk.

After the running the men were given practice in goal kicking, catching punts and drop kicking.

At 3:30 Coach Hale had the men out again in their tugs and sharp signal practice was the order. Several pairs of backs and ends were used and the men were all given a trial and all came out with a good sweat. Van Horne, the Franklin fullback, will try for end.

Jackson and Brown are both getting better of their bruises. Assistant Manager McClure went home. The weather is ideal and the men will be in fine shape when they return on Sunday.

PLAYERS LIKE PERRY HALE.

Assistant Manager McClure of the O. S. U. football team, came to Columbus Thursday and reports the squad at Ruggles Beach in fine shape. He says the men are all pleased with Coach Perry Hale's earnest and energetic work winning their confidence. The team will reach Columbus Sunday, and will have five days practice on the home field for the opening game with Otterbein, Saturday, September 27.

NEWARK ATHLETIC CLUB.

The Newark Athletic Association met last night for the purpose of re-organizing its football eleven. There was a good attendance of its members. A lot of new material will be introduced into this year's team, which promises to be the strongest team that has ever been organized in Newark. The management intends to give to the Newark lovers of this manly sport a series of games that will be worth their while to see and in these contests the Newark eleven does not intend to come out second best, if hard training and science will otherwise decide. They hope that the people of Newark will give them their patronage and best wishes to help them in their efforts.

THROUGH CARS

On Interurban Road to Cincinnati—A New Track to be Built from Lafayette.

Information comes from Springfield to the effect that the officials of the Columbus, London & Springfield are planning to inaugurate through trains to Cincinnati from Columbus and that in order to better facilitate the running of such trains a track will be built from Lafayette to Somerford, which will cut off quite a distance. This means that Newark people can ride from this city to Cincinnati on electric cars with but one change of cars at Columbus.

As at present constructed, the line verges off to the south west from Lafayette, to London, and then to the northwest to Somerford. The change if made, will not affect the operation of local on the London schedule, but will cut off quite a distance of track for through trains to Cincinnati.

Ladies, do you want to be strong, healthy and beautiful? Use Walther's Peptonized Port. It never fails.

Praise For a Prima Donna.
"Yes," said Mr. Cumrox, "I thoroughly admire that opera singer."
"I didn't know you cared much for music."
"Well, to tell you the truth, her music didn't impress me very deeply. But when I heard the salary she gets I took off my hat and said, 'There is a woman who has a mighty fine business head on her shoulders.'"—Washington Star.

A Poor Child Lesson.
"My, my, my!" said the little girl's grandmother. "You mustn't make so much fuss when you have your hair combed. When I was a little girl, I had my hair combed three or four times every day."
"Yes," said the child, pointing at the poor little gray knot on the back of the good old lady's head, "and see what you've got for it!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sale of Seats.

The sale of seats for the concert to be given at Taylor Hall on Tuesday evening, Sept. 30, by the Otterbein Quartet Company, will open at the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow (Saturday). Professor Newman of the Davis Conservatory of Music of Otterbein, will accompany the Quartet and will be the pianist. Mr. Chenoweth, first tenor of the Arion and Apollo clubs, will also be with them. The Arion club has a national reputation, the club being especially honored at Washington when William McKinley was inaugurated as President. The price of admission is only 25 and 35 cents, and as the entertainment is to be given under the auspices of the United Brethren church of East Main street, the hall should be crowded.

USEFUL DUSTER BAG.

Have One For Each Room and Save Yourself Much Trouble.
I am going to tell you how to make duster bags, which can hang in each room, the advantage being that the dust cloths will be always handy and be hidden in attractive hiding places. The dimensions of the duster bags are in all instances the same—the one I describe now is for the dining room and is made of art serge, green in hue—three-quarters of a yard long and nine inches wide. On each end embroider a spray of tawny yellow chrysanthemums with their accompanying foliage or, should you not care for flowers, use a conventional design. Line to a depth of twelve inches each end with a deep yellow sateen, which hem neatly at the top. This forms two pockets destined for the reception of dusters.

Next get a very large curtain brass ring, the kind that go over a brass curtain rod, and slip it through your material, leaving it in the middle of the plain middle piece. Hang this on a nail, and the pockets fall on either side. Now you have a most useful duster bag always on hand and one that will use up odd bits of stuff of all kinds.

The duster bag for the drawing room should be made of brocade, and the bedrooms should have ones of cretonne or chintz.—Ladies' Pictorial.

Mothers Who Are Blind.

A mother's blindness is proverbial. Of course we all know it is in reference to her want of perception in regard to her children's faults that the saying has arisen, but her blindness is evinced in many other ways as well. An instance in point is the incomprehensible obtuseness which some over-proud parent frequently displays in quoting remarks made by her sons and daughters—speeches that she repeats with evident pride in their perspicuity and quick wittedness, but which not only do not impress the hearer in the way she intends, but actually present her beloved offspring in a distinctly unfavorable light, says the New York Tribune.

Disagreeable qualities which she would be the first to detect and criticize in others when shown by her own children she actually converts into attributes that she deems desirable and proudly repeats their egotistical or uncharitable speeches, quite unconscious of the effect of her garrulity on her public. "Deliver me from my friends" is a well known proverb which might often be transposed into, "Deliver me from my mother."

Woman's Business on Earth.

Back of every great worthy achievement of man find the woman—mother, teacher, wife. They are there, contributing to the advancement of the race an impetus only less than that of the divinity that did create us. I have heard atavistic male creatures in human semblance deplore the presence of "the new woman," the woman who wishes perhaps to earn her own bread, certainly to shape her own life and the lives of the children she will bring into the world, to take an equal part with her brothers in the government that taxes her, to broaden her mental horizon until it shall include the best thought of all lands and times; and, truly enough, such women are not for such men; they have outgrown their critics. Their business is to improve the race by improving the individual—and they are hard at it.—National Magazine.

Perfumed Corset Bags.

The corset bag has become a part of one's underwear. It isn't really to wear, but all who wear corsets should know about it. This is a long, narrow bag of silk or muslin. It should be four inches longer than the corset and of exactly the same color. It is furnished inside with little scent bags suspended from narrow ribbons. Into this bag the corset is put at night, and the string is drawn up. This serves the double purpose of protecting the corset and perfuming it. More than that, it hides the corset, and in case it is laid away one can tell at a glance the color of the corset that is inside.

Fluffy and Straight Hair.

To make the hair simply fluffy, without curling it, moisten it with a preparation of alcohol or rectified spirits of wine, two ounces; cologne, one ounce; bicarbonate of soda, one-half ounce; rosewater, four ounces.

For the maid whose hair will curl when she doesn't want it to there is a remedy, fortunately. It calls for two ounces of bay rum, one-half ounce of sweet oil and a few drops of essence of violet. Put this on the hair and brush thoroughly.

Keeping Cheese.

Where cheese is bought in small quantities it is cheaper to grate the remnant left after the piece is nearly used as soon as it begins to get dry. Usually this bit is wasted, becoming dry, then oily and moldy. Keep the grated cheese in an uncovered jar, and it will be ready to use on crackers or over macaroni or for whatever it is desired.

"I want some more."

MISS DAVISWHOM SITES' AND BLACK CHARGE WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Cried When Letters Were Offered Against Her in Police Court at Columbus.

The Columbus Dispatch of Thursday evening printed the following about the Margaret Davis case, Miss Davis having been arrested on a warrant charging embezzlement sworn out by Mr. Fred Sites of this city as published in this paper three weeks ago. The Dispatch says:

Out of town witnesses in the Margaret Davis embezzlement case were heard in police court Wednesday afternoon, after which a postponement was taken until next Wednesday. Application for a continuance was made by the defense, but objected to by the state, and as a compromise, and to keep down the costs as much as possible, the members of the firm of Sites & Black, who allege that the defendant embezzled nearly $400 from them, were examined.

The testimony was to the effect that the defendant was in their employ as agent during the time the alleged embezzlement took place, and letters from the defendant to Mr. Sites were introduced, in one of which the defendant acknowledges that she did wrong and promised to make reparation.

When a letter written by the defendant to Mr. Sites, in which she refers to her mother, was read, Miss Davis could not prevent the tears from filling her eyes. A portion of the letter was personal and the court would not allow it to be read. It was offered in evidence, however, and accepted.

AMUSEMENTS.

There are some stage folks whose personality has won for them scores of loving friends among people whose affections do not ordinarily go out to stars of the dramatic profession. Prominent among that folk is Denman Thompson whose latest success, "Our New Minister", will receive its first local presentation at the Auditorium Monday night, Sept. 22. He is Uncle Denman to about all the world, and has been thoroughly identified in the public mind with dear old "Josh Whitecomb", the character that he first invented and has played for the past seventeen years in "The Old Homestead". The newer play is in its second year of success, and, like its predecessor, deals with life as it is to be found today in any rural New England community. The scene of the play is laid in Hardscrabble, N. H., and the three acts are made up of an exterior of a general store and post office, the sitting room and library of Thaddeus Strong, the new Minister, and the home of Lem Ransom, a reformed convict. The original cast will appear.

MARRIAGE

Of Guy Watkins and Miss Ethel Barker at First Presbyterian Church Parsonage Thursday.

Mr. Guy Watkins, a well known young man of this city, who is employed by the Newark Telephone company, and Miss Ethel Barker, daughter of B. & O. conductor, David N. Barker, who has been acting as operator for the Newark Telephone company for some time, were married on Thursday evening. The ceremony took place at the First Presbyterian parsonage on Locust street, and was performed by the pastor, Rev. L. S. Boyce, at 8 o'clock. The happy couple will make their home in apartments in the Thomas block where the Wolant bakery is located, on Third street.

SATTERFIELD-DIXON.

At her home Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, Miss Mary Alice Satterfield was married to Mr. Harry W. Dixon by the Rev. J. C. Schindel, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church. The service of the church was used and the happy young people were made man and wife in the presence of the immediate families. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Mr. Dixon is an employee of the B. & O. and Miss Satterfield the daughter of James Satterfield, a B. & O. engineer. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon will make their temporary home at No. 323 Buckingham street.

STONE-MARSH.

At 8 o'clock Thursday evening, with the full service of his church, Rev. J. C. Schindel made man and wife Mr. Sulvaness Stone a popular B. & O. brakeman, and Miss Estella Marsh, the accomplished daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Marsh, 24 North Fifth street. Only the families and their immediate friends were present. Both young couples are receiving the congratulations of many friends today, who wish them a "bon voyage."

Sovereign Grand Lodge Repeals the Amendment Made a Year Ago. Des Moines Meeting.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 19.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F. by a vote of 146 to 36 repealed the amendment to the constitution adopted at Indianapolis in 1901, admitting members of mixed Indian and white blood. The debate was spirited and the amendment was supported in a vigorous manner by the Indian Territory delegates, who originally secured its adoption on the ground that many men of high character have Indian blood in their veins.

The delegates who opposed the amendment, especially those from the Southern jurisdiction, expressed the fear that if adopted it would prove the opening wedge which might eventually result in admitting the negro to membership.

R. M. Shanks of Manitoba, official reporter for the session, furnished the following statement as all that would be made public regarding the insurance controversy:

"The difference between Grand Sir Cable and Past Grand Sir Pinkerton arising out of correspondence on the subject of insurance, was adjusted to the satisfaction of the said brothers and the Sovereign Grand Lodge."

AN OLD FAVORITEBEAUTY

By John Keats

JOHN KEATS was born in London Oct. 31, 1795, and died in Rome Feb. 23, 1821. Keats has been called "the popular hero of English literature." This is due to his verse, his intimate association with Shelley and Hunt and his untimely death all endear him to the reading public. Among the best of his verse are the "Ode to a Grecian Urn," "Ode to a Nightingale," "Lamia," "The Eve of St. Agnes" and "Lady Mon." The extract given below is from the last named.

A THING of beauty is a joy for ever: Its loveliness increases: it will never Pass into nothingness; but still will keep A bower quiet for us, and a sleep Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing. Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing A flowery band to bind us to the earth, Spite of despondence, of the imman death Of noble natures, of the gloomy days, Of all the unhealed wounds, and of the dark, Some shape of beauty moves away the pall From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon, Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon For simple sheep; and such are daffodils With the green world they live in; and clear rills That for themselves a cooling covert make 'Gaiest of the season: the mid-forest brake, Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk-rose blooms; And such, too, is the grandeur of the dooms We have imagined for the mighty dead; All lovely tales that we have heard or read: An endless fountain of immortal drink, Pouring unto us from the heaven's brink. Nor do we merely feel these essences For one short hour; no, even as the trees That whisper round a temple, become soon Dear as the temple's self, so does the moon, The passion poetry, glories infinite. Haunt us till they become a cheering light Unto our souls, and bound to us so fast, That, whether there be shine, or gloom o'ercast, They always must be with us, or we die.

NATURAL GAS

Recent Developments Show Homer Field to be the Best Ever Found in Ohio.

Mt. Vernon, O., Sept. 19.—The Banner in an editorial on the Licking county gas field says in part.

The recent developments in the Homer gas field have demonstrated that this field is the best gas field that has ever been found in Ohio, and later drilling has shown that the northern boundary of the field is within five miles of Mt. Vernon. That being so, it seems strange that our people should let such an opportunity to obtain cheaper fuel pass. When we consider what money has been spent by this city in the past in an attempt to obtain gas, it only adds to our surprise that we are not taking advantage of this opportunity.

Unfortunately, for us, the territory is now practically all under lease, and nearly all controlled by these large companies that are endeavoring to monopolize the supply of gas, and maintain the price as at present.

The manufacturers of this city have associated themselves with a few other gentlemen, and organized what is known as the Knox County Oil and Gas company, and are proposing to bring gas from this field to Mt. Vernon for the use of manufacturers, at a rate of 7 cents per 1000 cubic feet. They have a few tracts of good territory under lease, and are now drilling on the Hunter tract and expect to have gas in Mt. Vernon before winter.

This project should receive the support of every citizen of the city as it means more to the manufacturers of the city than anything that has been proposed in recent years.

THE FALL MILLINERY.

New Hats Are Mostly Flat and Elaborately Trimmed. [Special Correspondence.]

New York, Sept. 15.—Everybody is to be suited this season so far as hats are concerned, for there never was a greater variety, from the rough stitched frieze to the velvet with lace and other trimmings. The soft, fine felt is like velvet, and the rough friezes are just rough enough and coarse enough to come under the head of "style."

These are trimmed in curious ways, some of them having a long fish made of small but brilliant feathers laid on one over the other, like scales. There are extra long ones with heads and tails, and they are brought around the edge of the brim. I cannot say that I like these, but others may. The fancy made plume in shape of a fish or like a long feather taken from a pheasant or a peacock's breast makes a rich piece of garniture to twine among other and plainer things.

Ostrich plumes are seen, but they are extremely handsome ones, with very long and glossy flues. The poorer qualities are not seen, at least upon the finest of the new millinery.

There is a new felt, and I am at a loss just how to describe it. It has a solid body, but the surface is as woolly as a six-week-old Newfoundland puppy and quite as soft. The woolly surface is really warm and quite different from the silky beaver. There are many of these last, chiefly in white or light tints like cream and pearl; also French gray.

As to shape, everything goes, it would seem, the hat taking character from the trimming. Nearly one-half of the shapes are flat and so arranged that the brim shall droop very much like those of the past season, and in the trimming the drooping ribbon or veiling at the back is quite as well liked as it has been. Indeed almost all of the different shapes show more or less of this effect. It is very becoming.

Green is to be among the best liked of all the colors, but it will be mingled with other colors so that however unbecoming it is to the wearer as a color the hat itself is everything one could desire. A velvety felt "flat" is made a thing of beauty by facing it with a shirring of cream white chiffon and trimming the top with flat loops of velvet ribbon to match and having at the back a cascade of loops of the same. On the top of the ribbon a small bunch of "dusty miller" leaves and a few white grapes on each side make it beautiful. A small cluster of white carnations is set at the left side under the brim. A band is put around on the inside to hold the hat on the head in the approved way.

Turban shapes in quite a hundred different varieties are shown. Some are of lustrous straw and strips of felt interwoven until it looks like a new braid. It is extremely rich and novel. A turban of this style is made to set down nearly to the brows, and the brim turns up in broken lines. In black this has an elegance rare to see. Whatever trimming is put on this style of hat is put on the crown. Some have ribbon in a rather close mass, others have velvet flowers of some rich tint, with foliage of the same, while still others have one of the made plumes curled around. Few metal trimmings are seen.

Rushabout hats are made of rough straw for early fall and of braided felt for later in the season. Some are stitched round and round. One has the brim stitched and curled up a little at the sides. The under part of the brim is of one shade or color, and the upper is different. There is a flowing veil of dark or black silk mull tied up into a graceful knot at the left side and left to fall at the back. The ends are tucked in two or three folds. There is almost no limit to the way this simple hat can be trimmed.

Liberty silk is used to make the scarfs that trim many of the fall hats. One hat was of dark blue felt, and the scarf was of the palest possible blue. The combination was very effective. Velvet and panne autumn leaves are considered highly desirable to trim handsome felt hats, and small clusters of fruit are seen on many. Grapes of different shades of color and blackberries are among the favorites.

There are some very becoming bonnets made for elderly women and also for young ladies. There are occasions when a bonnet is as necessary as a fine dress, and church is one of them and the horse show another. The bonnets have rather flat crowns, with a trim standing up across the forehead like a chadim. This is made the foundation of all sorts of pretty trims, mostly of the light and filmy order, like delicate alights or soft panicle plumes. These dainty bonnets have strings of velvet ribbon or tulle.

J. W. HANSBERGER & BRO.AL G. FIELD

Is Ohio's Candidate for Grand Exalted Ruler of Elks' Election at Baltimore Next Year.

(Columbus Citizen.)

Since the Ohio state organization of the B. P. O. E. held their annual reunion at Newark a number of representative Elks from several states have determined to push Al G. Field for grand exalted ruler at the next annual election of officers, which will take place at Baltimore, Md., next year. O. M. Evans, W. H. McDermith and Ed. H. Archer are the committee from Columbus lodge who have charge of Mr. Field's candidacy in conjunction with a number of prominent Elks from other lodges in other states.

There was strong pressure brought to bear upon Mr. Field the past year to stand for the office, but he declined upon the grounds that he was for George P. Cronk, the present grand exalted ruler, and upon the further grounds that he did not believe in making a contest for this high office. Mr. Field is in the South with his company and it is not known what his feelings are in the matter. A letter has been written him and a representative of the order will meet him at Atlanta, Ga., this week and go over his situation with him.

Al G. Field has long been identified with the Order of Elks and is a past exalted ruler of Columbus Lodge No. 17. He was grand exalted ruler district deputy when that position carried the responsibility of the whole state, which is now composed of four districts. He instituted a number of the most flourishing lodges in Ohio, and during his administration the order made greater advancement than ever before, both as to number of lodges and membership, placing Ohio as the banner state of Elksdom. He has always taken an active interest in the work of the order. He was elected grand exalted lecturer at Milwaukee and Grand Exalted Ruler Cronk has appointed him chairman of the present committee on work and ritual.

Mr. Field is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, has ever had the best interests of the order at heart, and will make an ideal grand exalted ruler for the Order of Elks.

WILLARD HAYES

SAYS THERE IS NO DANGER AT COPPERAS MOUNTAIN.

Attention of Washington Geologists Called to the Fuming Mound in Ohio.

Thursday's Advocate published a dispatch from Washington C. H., O., telling of the excitement occasioned by the appearance of smoke and sulphurous gases at Copperas Mountain. The attention of the geologists at Washington among them C. Willard Hayes, was called to the story which caused the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer to wire his paper the following dispatch Thursday night:

"There is no danger of Copperas mountain, located in Paint Creek Valley, near Bainbridge, Ross county, O., becoming an understudy of Mt. Pelee, according to the geologists of the United States Geological Survey. The story sent out from Bainbridge yesterday to the effect that the people living in the valley were becoming alarmed over the appearance of the smoke and sulphurous gases at Copperas Mountain was read with interest by the Government geologists. The interest was tinged heavily with amusement, for it is asserted there is not the slightest possible danger of an eruption. Bainbridge is on the edge of the coal region in Southern Ohio, and Copperas Mountain is merely a hill. Very likely coal beds underlie it and their presence, in the opinion of the geologists, explains the smoke and gases.

"If the story is true that smoke and sulphurous gases are issuing from Copperas Mountain it is not difficult to account for them. There doubtless are coal deposits under the mountains and they probably have caught fire. Iron pyrites is usually associated with coal and oxidizes when it comes in contact with the air, forming iron sulphate of copperas. It is usually found impregnated with water from coal mines. Iron pyrites in sufficient quantities may catch fire by spontaneous combustion and ignite the coal. When it burns it forms sulphurous fumes, and I infer from the story that it is this kind of fumes which the people in Paint Creek valley have seen.

"There is not the remotest chance of a volcanic eruption from Copperas Mountain nor of any other seismic disturbances. There are no volcanic mountains in the State of Ohio, and as for their being any connection between Copperas and Pelee, it is wholly impossible."

"I FELL!"

Cried Homer Burger, "and Busted My Head," but in Reality Was Shot by a Friend.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 19.—Homer Burger was fatally shot in a chivalric party near Lewis. The crowd of youths gathered at a house where it was supposed Joe Christ, the town's trustee, and his bride were spending the night, but learning that the bride and groom were not there it went after watermelons in a patch near by. Some of the crowd thought it would be fun to scare the others and fired shots in their direction. Homer Burger fell, and when his companions went to him he said: "I fell and busted my head."

They saw that he was shot, and tried to make him tell who shot him. He said he knew, but quickly retracted the assertion, and repeated that he had fallen and hurt himself. Then he lost consciousness. The physicians saw the bullet entered the brain and will be fatal. At last accounts he was alive.

Fromholz Discharged.

The trial of Councilman George Fromholz for keeping his saloon open on Sunday, was held before Mayor Forry this afternoon in the council chamber.

The charge was filed by Flavius Haslet. After the testimony of the prosecution was all in, the defense offered no testimony and Mayor Forry thereupon dismissed the case and discharged Mr. Fromholz, as the state had failed to prove the charge. The prosecution was represented by Gil. C. Daugherty, while Phil Smythe and S. L. James appeared for Mr. Fromholz.

CHAMP CLARK STORIES

Bright and Witty Tales Picked Up Here and There.

A Lawyer's Queer Description of a Sermon—Astonishing Behavior of a Corpse—When the Mourners Failed to Impress a Jury—A Negro at the Circus—Thought the Elephant Had Too Much Leather in His Breaches—Why a White Man Was Punished For Playing Craps.

(Copyright, 1902, by Champ Clark.) Some people use big words appropriately and inappropriately in order to appear to possess great learning. Others use them inappropriately as a matter of amusement.

An Astonishing Sort of Sermon.

Dr. Greene, president of William Jewell college at Liberty, Mo., invariably preaches a baccalaureate sermon to his graduating class on the Sunday immediately preceding the commencement exercises. He is a very able man, and the people of Missouri, without any reference to politics or religion, take great pride in him. At Liberty there also lives a very bright lawyer who uses very large words for the purpose of astonishing people.

A year or so ago, after Dr. Greene had delivered a famous baccalaureate sermon, somebody asked this lawyer what he thought of it, whereupon he replied, "It's the greatest baccalaureate sermon that I ever heard!"

On another occasion this lawyer was addressing a jury for the defense in a murder case. Like a great many other lawyers, he put himself in the place of the deceased and instead of saying that the deceased did so and so and said so and so to his client he would say "he did it to us." So in a great burst of eloquence he said: "The deceased cut us; he beat us; he stabbed us; he choked us; he called us a liar, a scoundrel and other appropriate epithets!"

The Cheerful Mourners.

One of my most distinguished constituents is Judge J. W. Boulware of Fulton. Judge Boulware is one of the greatest criminal lawyers in Missouri and has been unusually successful in the practice.

Like all other great advocates, he has met with some crushing disappointments. He tells the following anecdote at his own expense. "Some years ago," says the judge, "I was engaged in defending a man for murder down in Osage county. It was a very tough case, and in order to prevent the man from being hanged I brought into play all the arts of which I was capable. In order to help me along when I came to the pathetic part of my speech, I had the wife and six or eight children of the defendant, clad in mourning, brought into court and seated at a convenient distance behind me. In my peroration I became as pathetic as possible and pumped for tears with all my might. In order to make more forcible the heart melting appeal that I was making to the jury, I turned around to the woman and her children and said, 'Gentlemen of the jury, look at these!'

I looked myself, and every internal one of them was crumpling a stick of red circus candy as unconcernedly as if the man on trial for his life was no kin to them. I was so amazed and disgusted that I forgot the rest of my speech and stammered out, 'Gentlemen of the jury, take the case.' They not only took my case, but they took my client also."

Orator and Humorist.

Recently I went over to Fulton, the capital of Callaway county, which has been added to the Ninth district, on a sort of missionary expedition. That is the seat of Westminster college, the great Presbyterian college of Missouri. One night I attended a banquet of the alumni. Among the speakers was Hon. William H. Wallace of Kansas City, who won imperishable renown by his great speech in prosecuting Frank James for murder. He is a splendid lawyer, an orator and possessed of a fund of wit and humor. He delivered a speech which he entitled "Some Thoughts on Extemporaneous Speaking." It was made up almost entirely of a string of the funniest anecdotes that I ever heard. Among other things he said: "Once upon a time there was a colored preacher who took for his text, 'The devil goes about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour.' In announcing his subject he said, 'Brethren and sisters, I will divide my text into three parts—first, Who am he? second, Where are he going? third, What in the deuce am he roarin' about?'

He followed that up with the following about a colored man who went to a circus for the first time in antebellum days. When he returned home, his master said, 'How did you like the circus?'

"Oh, first rate," replied the colored man. "Did you see the tiger?" "Yes, sah; I saw the tiger." "What did you think of him?" "I dunno much 'bout tigers, but he seemed to me to be a respectable sort of tiger." "Did you see the lion?" "Yes, sah; I saw de lion." "What did you think of him?" "I dunno much 'bout lions, but he 'peared to me to be all right." "Did you see the elephant?" "Yes, sah; I saw the elephant." "What did you think of him?" "He 'peared to be all right, except that he seemed to have too much surplus leather in the seat of his breeches."

Hon. D. W. Shackelford, Jurist.

Hon. William H. Williams of Boonville, a great lawyer and an ex-judge of the supreme court of Missouri, is a close friend to Judge Shackelford, who represents the famous Bland district in congress. In fact, Judges Williams and Shackelford were boys together. Judge Williams likes to indulge in reminiscences about "Shack," as he is familiarly called.

Judge Williams says that on one occasion a man was up before Judge Shackelford for "shooting craps." Shack looked at the prisoner in a quizzical sort of way and inquired, "Are you a white man or a colored man?" "I'm a white man," exclaimed the prisoner, with astonishment. "Then," replied his honor, "I will fine you the extreme limit, for this court takes judicial notice of the fact that craps is peculiarly the colored man's game, and if a white man indulges in it within my jurisdiction he must pay well—in fact, the highest price—for the luxury!"

Ordered the Jury Out.

Governor Charles P. Johnson of St. Louis is rated in the front rank of criminal lawyers. He understands all the arts of his profession. Among others he has a sly way of raising a question of law and of injecting into his argument to the court a speech intended for the ears of the jury. He frequently appeared in Judge Shackelford's court, and Shack, so Judge Williams alleges, soon observed the governor's habit and made up his mind to cure him of it. So in a bitterly fought criminal case at Boonville Governor Johnson raised a knotty question and was about to begin arguing it when Judge Shackelford surprised and disgusted him by roaring, "Mr. Sheriff, take the jury out into the courthouse yard beyond earshot." The governor said, "Your honor, there is no use in sending the jury out," whereupon Shack blandly replied: "Now, Charlie, you are about to make a dry legal argument for the information of the court solely, which the court will be pleased to hear, but the jury is composed of farmers and will enjoy rolling around on the grass under the trees. So proceed with your argument. The court is all attention."

Supreme Court Pulchritude.

The pessimists who are forever croaking in our ears the dismal story that the human race is deteriorating physically as well as mentally should take a good square look at the supreme court of the United States and be disillusionized.

It is a magnificent body of men to gaze upon. While none of them looms up among the clouds as did one Og, of whom we read, they are all splendid specimens of brawn and bone. The smallest man on the bench, the one that women artists would pronounce the handsomest, is Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller, but he stands six feet and weighs close to 200 pounds.

All the judges are what we would commonly call "whoppers," none of them under six feet.

Judge Harlan as a Soldier.

I have known Mr. Justice Harlan by sight for 35 years. When my boyish eyes first gazed upon and admired his magnificent form, he was recruiting the Tenth Kentucky Union infantry, one of the finest regiments that fought for the old flag. Two-thirds of that regiment were husbands and fathers, sober, thinking men, who enlisted for "three years or during the war," after William H. Seward's prophecy of a 90 days' picnic was exploded and when men, north and south, recognized the awful fact that the civil war was to be a long, bitter, bloody struggle to the death.

Judge Harlan was then in the flower of his years, over six feet, straight as an arrow, supple as an Indian, a picture of manly beauty.

He was a brave soldier and exceedingly free with his men. Before they got into a battle he was always telling them how they should deport themselves. After Mill Springs, when old Pap Thomas gained his first laurels, where Zollicoffer was killed and where the Harlan regiment received its baptism of fire, the judge frankly confessed to his "boys," as he called them, that fighting wasn't exactly a holiday performance and that a sense of honor was all that held him to his post.

A Fighting Chaplain.

Colonel Harlan would have been a general if he had not resigned. This incident is illustrative of the martial spirit of the Kentuckians. At Chickamauga the chaplain, who was a Christian militant, would not stay in the rear among the ambulances, where he properly belonged, but when Longstreet's Virginians were charging furiously he rushed on the field, and, not wishing to swear himself and finding no other mode of expression adequate to relieve his pent up feelings, he raged up and down the lines, shouting, "Boys, give them hell, as Colonel Hayes says!"

Mr. Justice Harlan is not one of the dry as dusts. He enjoys a joke as much as Private John Allen himself. One of the most pleasant days of my service in congress was that on which the judge came over to the house and remained two or three hours communing with the members. The Kentuckians gathered about him and listened gleefully while he poured out a flood of reminiscences garnished with scintillating wit and delightful humor.

I afterward took Colonel John M. Barker of Mexico out to his house and introduced him to the great jurist, with whom he had some professional business. At first Colonel Barker, who is game as a rat, and myself felt rather nervous, but Judge Harlan soon put us at ease by his gracious manner.

Time has broadened Judge Harlan's ideas. He is no longer a partisan politician, but a great judge, worthy of his high place. Mentally and physically he is a magnificent man. Tall, large, robust, blond as any lily, with a florid face, light sandy hair—what there is of it—a military nose, a square face, a massive jaw, a capacious mouth, great steel blue eyes and a 24 inch head, he looks the ideal jurist. A Republican in politics, a Presbyterian in religion, he enjoys this world and the good things thereof with the relish of the typical Kentuckian, which he is.

SCORES THE SMART SET

Watterson's Caustic Criticism of New York's Four Hundred.

NOT METROPOLIS' GOOD SOCIETY.

Kentucky Colonel-Editor Points Out the Downward Tendency of What is Known as the Aristocracy—Even in Better Realms of Wealth. He Says, Toleration of the Unclean in Growing—Effect Upon the Problems of the Times.

When Ward McAllister, a rather absurd but yet well born gentleman, invented the Four Hundred, it was his purpose—to pay a kind of obeisance to certain families supposed to be rich enough to form a court circle in the great and growing city of New York, writes Colonel Henry Watterson in his paper, the Louisville Courier-Journal, renewing his severe arraignment of New York society and answering some criticisms of a former article.

That was five and twenty years ago. There were many who laughed both at him and his conceit. There were some who seriously accepted the homage intended to be conveyed. Perhaps very few thought that the imaginary lines thus established in the mind's eye of a rather solemn bon vivant, who lived high and died poor, would come to be the boundaries of an actual territory, a newly discovered country as fantastic as Wonderland, with laws of its own, inhabited by a people marked, quoted and signed for deeds of strenuous frivolity; an aristocracy without a pedigree; a coterie, à la Rambouillet, without wit or humor.

In the good old days when Bret Harte was a social as well as a literary lion and Mark Twain was considered equal to extracting sunbeams from cucumbers the dinners were in solid virtues worth what they paid for, them in mirth provoking jokes; the dinners were dull, but respectable, Chauncey being grand chamberlain and toastmaster in ordinary. What is now called lower Fifth avenue could not be described as Mr. Dooley recently described Newport, "the abode of luxury and alimony," where "the husband of yesterday intradoes the wife that was to the wife that is or ought to be." In the beginning it was a stiff necked, high backed affair.

Having its abutment on Washington square, there were then, as there still are around that genteel, comfort breeding octagon, plain brick walls, with white facings, to which scandal was a stranger; habitations that went by the name of homes—the homes of the Coopers, the Duncans, the Rhinelanders, the Hewitts, the Garners, the Thornbikes—solid folk who, if not as rich as the elder Astors, were rich enough and vied with the Astors in lives singularly clean and habits wholly unostentatious. They form today the basis of what may fairly be called good society. Accuse one of them of being of the Four Hundred, and if you do not offer an insult you perpetrate a solecism.

It was all on account of moving uptown. It began with the sudden wealth of which war is a progenitor. As long as the average New Yorker had to work for his living and got his riches by the sweat of his brow money had both a character and a value. When Union square was fenced round by a wooden paling and the site of the Fifth Avenue hotel was yet a frog pond, not a shop above Houston street in Broadway, the old red brick Roosevelt mansion at what is now Dead Man's curve, a kind of advance guard of the march northward, the grandees of Gotham were content to live in brownstone fronts, as like one to another as two of a kind, and they lived exceedingly well. They could tell the difference between Crow whisky and rainwater Madeira. They played whist, not bridge.

But about the time the equestrian statue of the Father of His Country went up and the palings around Union square came down and the order to "place his head to the rising sun and his tail to Dr. Cheever's church" was issued the nouveau riches of the war came upon the scene.

With magical rapidity wealth had already started to accumulate, fortunes to be multiplied, millions to be made as plentiful as blackberries, common—not only common in quantity, but in quality likewise. Central park was made to the very hands of these. That they should build their grandiose palaces near it was inevitable.

In the early seventies New York's Four Hundred had come neither to their patrimony nor their proudest. But they existed in a crude, coarse way, expressing themselves in baggy tails and shirt fronts and shiners, a trifle too brazen and noisy perhaps, but undeniably rich. The men had not yet learned the stony stare and the brutal swagger of the bucks of the Jardis Mabile and the titled bruters of the Argyle rooms. The women were still women—God bless them!—a little vulgarized by so much money, but ignorant of the pinchbeck airs and graces of the demimondaine and the unspeakable dirt of London and Paris.

Yet then, as now, the best people, no matter how rich, turned silently aside and gave them the middle of the road. The tragic end of Fisk was for a time an object lesson. It let in a flood of light and gave a moment's check to the orgy of license which was exceeding its natural bounds and beginning to make its influence felt in dangerous proximity to those regions where wealth was recognized as paramount. It was this which secured the modification of the Stokes verdict from death to a short term of imprisonment.

The noxious weed, however, had taken root. The bucket shop was to become an institution, the stock gambler a power, the market as familiar to women as to men. Mr. Carnegie may give all of his millions to the noblest works, the Messrs. Rockefeller may endow a thousand schools and charities, while a dozen billionnaires may show by their wise and lavish use of money how ill they think of it except as the means of doing good; but, as the poor are always with us, so are the vulgar, who, given money enough, set up a voluptuous principlity; call it the Four Hundred and, having made sure of its boundaries and their isolation, proceed to make their own moral code, hardly deigning even to ask the rest of the community, "What are you going to do about it?"

The senging palace, the modern auto, the struggle for equivocal notoriety, the strife for titles, the eating from the tree of forbidden knowledge, the aping of the manners of the foreign swell and the fancied great, the marriage as an experiment and the marriage of convenience, the hot pursuit of pleasure at home and abroad—in short, the constant striving after the ostentatious display of wealth inevitable to the sun worship of money—these are among the features that distinguish the Four Hundred from other rich people, who do not need to affect anything, who heartily despise such proceedings, who, with fortunes secure and social positions fixed, live without scandal and travel without adventure, but whom the wantons of the smart set describe as the "bourgeoisie."

In separating the sheep from the goats and properly ticketing the goats shall one be accused of blasphemy? . . .

Back of all this stands not alone a great moral problem, but a great national and economic problem. The pretense that we have maligned anybody or spoken outside the record is a device of the guilty and their newspaper apologists to hide behind the self respecting and the virtuous. It is of the essence of caste distinction where the rule is touch one, touch all, a rule which during the reign of terror brought thousands of the innocent and the good along with the bad to the guillotine.

Licentiousness, like revolution, never goes backward. The assumption of today becomes the claim of tomorrow. In a land where there are no patents of nobility and where in some sort money must set the standards the rich themselves, before all others, should look to it that their colleagues in good form do not disgrace the order—shall we say of the Golden Fleece?—by their disregard of common rights and their indifference to public opinion.

We do not need to institute any historic parallels; to take to ourselves any lessons from ancient Greece and Rome may be. He is but a poor observer of contemporary life and no prophet at all who does not see that the whole trend of public affairs is set toward an ultimate conflict between the forces of prerogative, on the one hand, and the forces of what the exclusive few delight to call "the great unwashed" on the other; between capital, too often avaricious and grasping, and labor, grimy and passionate, and left riderless, a monster without a head.

It is beside the purpose to say that there are rich men humane, generous, charitable. So are there poor men patient, wise, conservative. It is with forces, not individuals, we shall have to deal, and, though temporizing may postpone the day, the day is surely coming when it is to be decided who own the country, who control the government—the aggregations of wealth mainly piled up in a single section or the hivers of wood and the drawers of water who do the work and fight the battles and pay the taxes, the great commonality of what Abraham Lincoln called "the plain people."

Enlightened men would moderate that conflict. The scandalous behavior of the conspicuous rich plays directly to the lead of the extremist and the agitator, with unclean hands preparing the pickax of the leveler and the brand of the incendiary. The indifference of the guild of luxury and wealth, not to mention the common cause which too many of the worthy rich from a mistaken sense of association make with these, is replete with evil auguries.

Human nature has not much changed since man became acquainted with it. That we are yet upon the ascending, not the descending, scale of national development need not be denied, but we live in an accelerated age, electricity having annihilated time and space, and the Latin races doomed, Spain dead, Italy dying, France down with an incurable disease—the causes before our very eyes—shall we not seek to escape what seems to have been the destiny, not so much of luxury and wealth as the vicious assumption of class superiority and the injustice of organized money, percolating what is called society for pleasure, corrupting the fountains of the national credit and honor for profit?

Harper's Ferry, the Gate to the Shenandoah Valley.—Where the three States of Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland come together, where the Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers unite, where the towering steep of the Blue Ridge and abruptly, from the heights of Maryland and Bolivar Heights in West Virginia, lies the quaint historic town of Harper's Ferry. John Brown hanged in blood in 1859, when he captured the town and the U. S. Arsenal and made his final and fatal stand in the charge home. Known afterwards as John Brown's Fort, alongside the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. A plain shaft, simply inscribed, now marks the location.

Cured of Asthma

After Years of Terrible Suffering.

Mary Josephine Rezy, Floyd Knob, Ind., writes: "After suffering untold agonies for 32 years from Asthma, I was cured by Schiffmann's Asthma Cure. I used to be so bad that I could not move without help, but I can now do all my own work." Another writes: "My little boy 7 years old has been a sufferer for several years, sometimes so bad off that we could not hold him in bed, expecting any moment for him to breathe his last. Doctors did him no good and we had almost given up in despair, when through accident we heard of Schiffmann's Asthma Cure, tried it and it almost instantly relieved him." Mrs. D. C. Barrie, Elbow P. OPERA CARS

To be Run on Buckeye Lake Leaving Columbus for Newark at 11:15 p. m. Except Sunday.

General Manager Harrigan of the Buckeye Lake announces that beginning in about a week, opera cars will be run on that line every night, except Sunday. In order to do this, it will be necessary to abandon the 10 o'clock cars which leave Columbus and Newark simultaneously. In lieu thereof a car will leave the interurban station at Columbus at 11:15, thus giving ample opportunity for all visitors to the various opera houses to get it. The managers of the houses are in line with the proposition, and will do their part in advertising the project and assist in the success of the plan in various ways.

CHARMED WITH ALFONSO.

American Woman Fought the Battle of Flowers With Spain's King. From an American woman has come a warm defense of Alfonso XIII, the young king of Spain, says the New York Press. Miss Agnes B. Wilson of Manhattan, who returned to New York on the Teutonic the other day, was at the flower festival in Madrid and was presented to the king. "These stories about the young king's eccentricities," said Miss Wilson, "are not true. He is a very sensible young fellow and perfectly charming. At the flower festival it is the custom of the people to throw bouquets at each other. I threw four at the king, and he threw the same number at me. I have them in my trunk as keepsakes and treasure them highly. I again met the king at a royal garden party. I was with a party of Spanish people, and our carriage stopped in front of the royal box. Although a boy, the king shows great dignity in public, but at the flower festival this was all abandoned, and he was a child again.

"One morning the king arose at 6 o'clock and surprised his soldiers by ordering out the guard. He was much incensed at finding a lack of military order at this early hour and warned the officers that they would have to be more strict in the future. The king is as bright a boy as I have ever seen, and there is no truth in the stories that he has a weak mind or treats his mother cruelly.

"In Spain he is held up to all boys as the example of what a lad should be to his mother. Time and again I saw the queen mother and her royal son together. His manner toward her was charmingly gallant. He seemed a thousand times more anxious that honor and recognition should be paid to his mother than to himself.

"And he is fully sensitive to their affection, for when the cheers would ring wildest there would often come a moisture in the boy king's eyes as he bowed. If ever a human being's eyes said anything, his said that he meant to be a good king to his people."

GRANVILLE

WORK ON THE N. & G. ROAD IS PROGRESSING.

Foot Ball Season Opens—A Death—Class Election—Tennis Schedule. Personals.

Granville, Ohio, Sept. 19—Flossie, the little eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers, died at the home of the parents on East Broadway on Thursday afternoon after an illness of some time with appendicitis. Flossie was a bright and interesting child, and was the joy of her parents, who have the sympathy of all their friends in their great sorrow. The funeral will take place from the house on Saturday afternoon.

Work on the Newark and Granville street railway is being vigorously pushed by Mr. Charles Vadakin, the contractor. The rails have been laid to a point near the Centerville school house, and it is expected that the workmen will reach the vicinity of Granville by tomorrow night.

The first game of foot ball of the season will take place on the grounds of the Denison Athletic Association tomorrow, at which time a picked team from the Twentieth U. S. I., encamped at the State Camp Grounds will play with the Denison eleven. The game will be called about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Josie Perkins of Columbus, and Mrs. Mary White of Newark, spent Thursday in Granville, at the home of Mrs. F. L. Ferguson on Pearl street.

Miss Tressa Smith of New Philadelphia, after a short visit here with friends, has returned home.

The Freshman class of Granville College met in the chapel of Doane Academy for organization on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The following officers were elected for the term: President, J. W. Whalon; vice president, Mary Hunt; recording secretary, Mary Ferguson; corresponding secretary, Amy Dodson; treasurer, Paul McKibben; Chaplain D. F. Ritchhouse.

The Granville green house has had a new addition built to it in which Mr. Stenger, the owner, expects to grow his chrysanthemums this fall which are of unusually fine quality. The patrons of Mr. Stenger are proud of the green house as it now stands, and are glad to know that he will be able to supply them with choice flowers without having to send away for them.

Miss Adkins, the gymnasium teacher in Shepardson College has made out the tennis schedule for this term, and the Shepardson girls are to be seen on the courts almost every hour of the day. They are all entering with a great deal of enthusiasm and activity into the tennis game which is yet so popular with the sport loving men and women of America, both for its interest and excitement and for its recommendation as the most beautiful outdoor exercise.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrold Farley, of Columbiana county, who have been visiting relatives in Granville and vicinity for the past week, left for Franklin county this morning, where they will visit a brother of Mr. Farley for a short time.

The class in Theory of Music taught by Miss Edna Stranathan at Shepardson College, met Thursday afternoon for organization in Recital hall.

Mrs. H. F. Denman of Chillicothe who has been visiting relatives here for the past week, returned home on Thursday after having had a most enjoyable visit.

W. F. Chamberlin of Dayton, was in the village on Thursday.

Miss Ray Gilpatrick, a graduate of Denison, of the class of '02, has gone to Orange, N. J., where she will teach in a seminary.

AMOS H. BRICE

Addresses Ways and Means Committee at Dayton—Alumni Association of State School.

Representatives from the Ways and Means Committee of the Ohio Alumni Association of the State School for the Blind at Columbus, met at Dayton this week. The committee discussed the advisability of founding an employment bureau for the blind, and Professor Amos H. Brice, of Newark, addressed the committee on the subject, "What Can We Do to Educate Public Opinion in Regard to the Employment of the Blind." Professor Van Cleave and Professor J. W. Bitzer of Columbus also made addresses, and Prof. J. P. Lumb of Celina, a teacher in the State School for the Blind, presided over the meeting. Others present besides those mentioned, were Prof. F. A. Bartholomew of Delaware and Prof. J. E. Foster of Cincinnati.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Brice and passed, appointing a central committee of three, consisting of G. L. Smead, superintendent of the State School for the Blind, Mr. Kroust and Chairman Lumb, who are to act as an employment bureau, and to appoint sub-committees in the different counties of the state.

Professor J. E. Foster, of Cincinnati presented the subject of Printing as an employment for blind people, in a most instructive manner, and later Prof. Brice spoke upon "Educating Public Opinion."

HE WON ON TAILS.

Was Fast in Quicksand, but He Took the Chance.

There were five or six of us, under the pilotage of a cowboy, looking for a crossing of the Republican river when we caught sight of a man fast in a quicksand.

"Hello, you!" shouted the cowboy as we halted our horses.

"Hello, yourself!" was the reply.

"What you doin' there?"

"Sorter waitin'."

"You are one of the fellers we hustled off'n Big Four other day?"

"And what of it?"

"Nuthin', only you won't bother us no more! You'll be out of sight in an hour!"

"Don't you bank on that," growled the stranger. "I've bin in wuss fixes nor this and come out all right."

"You'll never come out o' that, and it'll serve you jest right!"

The man thrust a hand into his vest pocket and brought up a coin, and, holding it between thumb and finger, he called out:

"I'm willin' to take chances. If I win, you help me out; if I lose you kin ride on and be hanged to you!"

It was an appeal the cowboy couldn't refuse, and after a minute he replied:

"You rustlers don't deserve no show, but let'er go. If you lose, though, I'll leave you to go to the bottom! Toss'er up and call out!"

"I say tails!" exclaimed the man as he flung the half dollar to the bank.

"Tails she is," replied the cowboy as he bent in his saddle. "Now, then, keitch the end of this lariat and come ashore and jest let me tell you that if you don't make yourself skeerce the boys will either hang or shoot you!"

"Skeerce she am!" said the man as he got his breath and cast off the lariat, and without waiting to scrape off the mud he started off up the river and was soon lost to sight.
